Edward J. Carroll (ecarroll@cslaw.us) has been practicing EB-5 law since the inception of the program in the 1990s and has been an advisor to the State of Vermont since 1997 when its initial EB-5 Regional Center application was approved. He continues to counsel the State of Vermont and other regional centers on initial certifications, regional center amendments and operational issues. He is counsel to EB-5 investors and many U.S. enterprises regarding EB-5 issues. Mr. Carroll practices immigration law at the firm of Carroll & Associates, P.C, Grand Isle, Vermont. Mr. Carroll has served AILA as a member of the Investor (EB-5) Committee for eight years, the Business Immigration Committee and the Admissions and Border Enforcement Committee and as Co-Chair of the Liaison Committee to the Vermont Service Center. He is liaison to USCIS, USCBP in Vermont and liaison to Vermont’s Congressional Delegation for AILA’s New England Chapter. He was Vice-Chair of the ABA Immigration Law Committee, General Practice Section. Mr. Carroll is a frequent presenter on U.S. immigration law to AILA and other lawyer and business groups in the U.S., Canada and Asia. He has taught immigration law to adjudicators at the Vermont Service Center, is an AILA EB-5 mentor and has been a commentator for radio and television in the U.S. and Canada on U.S. immigration issues. Mr. Carroll is Associate Editor of Immigration Options for Investors & Entrepreneurs, second and third editions. Articles authored by Mr. Carroll have appeared in publications of AILA, the American Bar Association, the Vermont Bar Association, and in Canadian publications. Mr. Carroll is a graduate of Harpur College/Binghamton University (B.A. 1966) and Brooklyn Law School (J.D. 1969). He is included in The Best Lawyers in America publication for Immigration Law.

Estelle McKee is a clinical professor at Cornell Law School. From 2008 to 2014 she was an associate attorney at Lawler & Lawler where she specialized in EB-5 regional center applications. Altogether, these regional centers have raised well over $50 million in EB-5 capital and are creating thousands of jobs, including, most recently, jobs based on guest expenditures. Estelle has been an instructor in seminars and workshops on EB-5 law and other legal matters for the American Immigration Lawyers Association annual conference, the Cook County Appellate Defenders Office, Amnesty International USA’s Refugee Program Training Weekend, Pincus, and Immigration Law Weekly. She has also published articles in EB-5 Magazine, Benders Immigration Bulletin, and Immigration Options for Investors & Entrepreneurs, and has contributed to the book Professionals: A Matter of Degree, by Martin J. Lawler and Margaret Stock, and the legal treatise Immigration Law & Procedure, by Charles Gordon, Stanley Mailman, and Stephen Yale-Loehr. Estelle has practiced immigration law since 2000. Before then, she was a pro se law clerk for the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit where she focused on immigration-related appeals. For six years she taught lawyering and co-founded the Asylum and Convention Against Torture Appellate Clinic at Cornell Law School. She has also taught legal writing at the University of Wisconsin Law School. Estelle received her bachelor’s degree from Oberlin College and her J.D. from Columbia School of Law in New York. She is a member of AILA and the California and North Carolina bars.
David M. Morris is an attorney at Visa Law Group PLLC, an immigration law firm in Washington, DC. Mr. Morris serves as Chair of AILA’s EB-5 Investor Committee (2014–15) and has served on the planning committee and as a speaker/discussion leader for the last four AILA EB-5 Investor conferences. Mr. Morris has published many articles about the EB-5 visa program, including authoring a chapter in AILA’s book on the EB-5 program, Immigration Options for Investors & Entrepreneurs (AILA 2d Ed.). He has 15 years of experience with the EB-5 investor visa program in both pre– and post-Izummi decision years. He has established or amended several regional centers, and has assisted individual investors representing 20 different countries. Mr. Morris is also the managing member of the USCIS-designated DC Regional Center LLC, a company that develops real estate-based EB-5 investment projects in DC, Maryland, and Virginia.

Kristal Ozmun is an attorney at Miller Mayer LLP, a leading immigration law firm in Ithaca, NY. Ms. Ozmun has extensive experience in the EB-5 realm. She has filed approximately 800 I-526 and I-829 petitions for investors from China, Venezuela, France, and Iran, among other countries. She has also assisted in the formation and/or amendment of at least 15 regional centers. Ms. Ozmun also has been a faculty presenter on EB-5 issues, most recently at the January 2014 AILA Midyear Conference in the Cayman Islands.

Susan L. Pilcher (spilcher@visaattorneys.com) is Senior Counsel at Bernstein Osberg-Braun, P.L. in Miami, Florida, where her practice focuses on investment immigration. Ms. Pilcher counsels and represents clients in a diverse range of investment-related immigration matters, ranging from working with entrepreneurs on nonimmigrant status and long-range strategic planning, to preparing I-526 and I-829 petitions and template filings, guiding developers in the preparation of investment offerings suitable for EB-5 funding, developing I-924 Regional Center applications, and counseling Regional Centers and developers on ongoing compliance issues. Ms. Pilcher’s investment immigration clients have included individual E-2 and EB-5 investors from 40 countries, EB-5 project developers, USCIS-designated regional centers, and regional center applicants. Her general business immigration practice has been devoted substantially to the EB-5 Immigrant Investor Program since early 2007. She additionally has extensive experience with both routine and complex consular processing and border adjudications, and with servicing the business immigration needs of large and small companies, including hospitals, one of Fortune’s fastest growing companies, and large multinational enterprises. A widely published author and frequent speaker on investment immigration topics, Ms. Pilcher’s background includes roughly 15 years of immigration practice, several years of commercial law practice and a decade of full-time law teaching (including immigration law). She earned her J.D. with distinction from Stanford Law School, where she was managing editor of the Stanford Law Review.

Cletus M. Weber is co-founder and senior attorney of Peng & Weber, PLLC, a Seattle/Mercer Island, Washington immigration law firm with extensive experience in EB-5. Mr. Weber serves on AILA’s national EB-5 Investor Committee and frequently serves as a speaker or discussion leader for national EB-5 conferences. He won a President’s Commendation in 2012 for his work as Chair of AILA National’s Board of Publications. Mr. Weber has written and edited extensively on EB-5, including serving as Associate Editor of the two most recent editions of Immigration Options for Investors & Entrepreneurs, AILA’s book on EB-5 law and practice. He also served as invited reviewer of the EB-5 sections of the most recent version of Kurzban’s Immigration Law Sourcebook, the “bible” of U.S. immigration law. Mr. Weber represents regional centers, developers, and investors, and through numerous business trips to China since 1991, he also speaks “traveler’s” Chinese.
